

NICHE BOOK PROFITS

The 90-Day Catalog Planner

One title at a time, week by week -- research, build, upload, launch, repeat.

Ninety days is long enough to publish four solid titles and far too long to spend on one. This planner runs a steady rhythm -- one title moving through research, build, and launch while the previous title settles -- so every week something ships and something new starts. Work it alongside the KDP Launch Checklist: the checklist governs each title; this planner governs the calendar.

Weeks 1-13: The One-Title-at-a-Time Rhythm

Week	Focus	What gets done
1	Research	Validate Title 1's niche with the numbers method; draft its 7 keyword phrases.
2	Build	Build Title 1's interior; export print-ready; check every page.
4	Launch	Title 1 live: confirm it's indexed, price correct; share with your audience.
5	Research	Validate Title 2's niche while Title 1 settles; start its keyword list.
6	Build	Build Title 2's interior and cover; first weekly dashboard check on Title 1.
7	Launch	Title 2 live; Title 1 week-3 check: reviews, search position, one fix if needed.
8	Research	Validate Title 3's niche; Title 1 reaches day 30 -- refresh-or-retire decision.
9	Build	Build Title 3; Title 2's first dashboard review; write down what Title 1 taught you.
10	Launch	Title 3 live; Title 2 week-3 check; update the tracking table below.
11	Research	Validate Title 4 -- or a seasonal title, timed from the table below.
12	Build	Build Title 4; Title 3's first review; Title 2 reaches day 30 -- decision time.
13	Launch & review	Title 4 live; full-catalog review: four titles, total royalties, next 90 days planned.

Publish Ahead: The Seasonal Table

Seasonal titles obey the same rule as every listing: publish ahead of the peak, because a listing needs time to gather clicks and reviews before the crowd arrives. List by the dates below -- roughly 6-8 weeks early -- and let the season come to you.

Season / title type	List by	Why this early
Back-to-school planners & teacher books	Early July	Students and teachers buy 4-6 weeks before term starts.
Halloween activity & coloring books	Early September	Shopping starts in September; an October launch is too late to rank.
Christmas activity books & gift logs	Mid October	The buying wave runs through November; reviews must exist first.

Season / title type	List by	Why this early
New Year planners & habit journals	Early December	Resolution buyers shop from late December into January.
Valentine's activity & gift books	Early January	A short season -- publish immediately after New Year.
Summer journals & travel logs	Early May	Vacation buying peaks June-July; be listed and reviewed first.

Per-Title Tracking Table

One row per title, updated at your weekly dashboard check. This table is where refresh-or-retire decisions come from -- memory flatters, numbers don't.

Title	Niche	Live date	Price	Units	Royalties

The planner's real product is not any single book -- it is the rhythm. Four titles in 90 days, each researched with the same numbers and tracked in the same table, beats one 'perfect' book fussed over for a year, every single time.
